

Bus Line Owner Departs

Glenn Watson Fails To Appear; Buses, Other Equipment Are Found Missing

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Patrons of the Inter City Bus Lines had a long wait for service in 13-degree weather today.

And, if they were late for work, it was because the company's buses weren't operating on their usual runs between Kansas City and suburban points in Johnson County, Kan.

Drivers reported they showed up for work this morning to find the buses gone and office equipment missing.

"There were no desks and no filing cabinets," said Jim Plimmer of Kansas City, one of the drivers. "Even the safe was missing."

"We had no warning, no notice," Glenn Watson, who has operated the line several years, could not be reached for comment. Watson also operates bus lines at Jefferson City and Columbia, Mo. He formerly operated the Sedalia, Mo., city line.

Sedalia experienced the same treatment by Glenn Watson on June 25, 1953, when he moved out during the wee hours of the morning, between 12:30 and 5:30 a.m.

Watson had bought the buses from Olin and Marvin Howard and had operated them from November, 1952, until he left Sedalia. At that time, Watson moved some equipment which was later recovered by the Howard brothers who brought it back and put it into operation for a time.

Harry Goldberg was manager of the bus company in Sedalia at that time, and the move was made by Watson and a crew from Columbia without the knowledge of Goldberg or the drivers who were working. Local employees experienced similar treatment in Sedalia that those in Johnson County, Kan. experienced.

Several suits were filed for salaries by the Teamsters Union and drivers of the local company shortly after Watson disappeared.

It was reported at the time Watson departed Sedalia, he took with him five buses and one Ford Yellow Cab.

But the Howard Brothers resumed the bus lines temporarily after buses which had been left were put in running order by mechanics.

An employee of the Columbia office said he was not expected there today.

Plimmer said Inter City has six drivers and two mechanics. It operated six busses on its route from Kansas City to Mission, Overland Park and Shawnee, Kan.

"Most of us have three week's pay coming," Plimmer added. "Some are four weeks behind. I know they couldn't meet expenses."

He said the management issued checks, paid small cash payments from time to time until the check amounts were paid out and then took back the checks.

"We'd get a little bit of cash every day unless they had to pay a fuel bill or something like that," he said.

He said no checks were issued Feb. 5, the last scheduled pay day.

The line began hourly service in 1950, being granted permanent authority to operate by the Kansas Corporation Commission.

Fair and Warmer Seen For an Abrupt Change in Missouri Weather

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An abrupt change in Missouri's weather situation came about today.

Generally fair and warmer is the forecast. There will be increasing cloudiness and warmer tonight and Friday. Occasional snow in the south and extreme west is forecast for Friday.

Winds shifted to the south and southwest during the night, bringing warmer air into the Missouri area.

The cold high pressure area still extends from Canada to the Gulf. But a low pressure center in Wyoming is moving southward, meeting air from the Gulf.

The Weather Bureau says this will mean widespread precipitation, part of it hitting southern Missouri.

Lows tonight are expected to range between 10 and 15 in the northeast to the lower 20s south-west. Friday's highs will be in the 30s.

Lows in the state this morning included St. Joseph and Kirksville 2 above, Columbia, Farmington, Rolla and West Plains 9, St. Louis 11, Kansas City and Joplin 13 and Malden 14.

The Sedalia Lions Club observed its 20th anniversary Wednesday night with a dinner meeting at the Smith-Cotton High School cafeteria, at which Lions International First Vice President Dudley L. Simms was the principal speaker. The speaker used "Lionism" as his subject.

More than 300 Sedalia and visiting Lions from throughout Missouri with their wives were in attendance at the gathering. Thirty Clubs were represented and delegations from one to 14 persons

Telephone Co. Hosts 3,000 Young Pupils

Students See New, Oldtime Equipment Shown by Guides

A total of 3,000 school children from the fourth grade up will go through the new Southwest Bell Telephone building Wednesday, Thursday and Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

These children will be from all of the elementary public schools in Sedalia, Sacred Heart grade and high school, Camp Branch, Liberty, Anderson, Sunnyside, the science class from Smith-Cotton, Georgetown and Hughesville grade and high school. The Hughesville superintendent, Paul Vannatta, offered to have the Hughesville bus stop by to give transportation, also, for the children of Georgetown school. Parents of children at rural schools will furnish transportation in cars.

Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors has arranged for parking space for the buses as they wait for the youngsters to go through the building.

The timing for the tours through the building which started Wednesday morning has been almost perfect. A bus load of children from Sedalia schools will be brought to the building about a hundred at a time. They will be divided into groups of about 25 and the first group taken through the building while the second group hears all about the telephone.

The telephone employees explain things in simple language, as the first young woman tells how their parents go in the business office and ask to have a telephone put in, about the men who climb the poles, the operators on the switchboard, the test board man who is the doctor of the company, and the big machines they dial.

Boys and girls in grays and blues, reds and yellows, and even Boy Scout uniforms listen intently as each person tells his part in making a telephone work.

With a guide, each group is taken through the building to the test board, where they are told of the repair service and shown how the records are kept; the teletype machine which tests all lines and how they are graded on their work by something like a grade card at school.

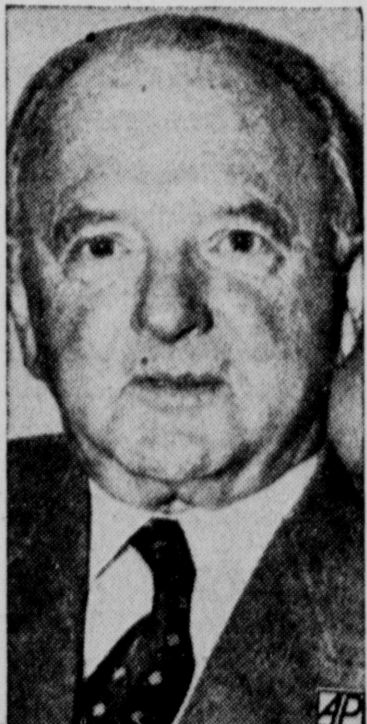

Then on they go, and a view of the great machines and their massive web of wires.

"Oh, boy," a boy exclaims, "the machines!"

Here the automatic message machine is explained where it records on perforated tape that he has all the information of the long distance call; the maintenance center which sometimes detects something wrong with a telephone before the subscriber is aware of it;

gations from one to 14 persons answered the roll call by Dr. Harry Goddard, Kennett, who introduced the visiting guests and celebrities.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the presentation by Toastmaster John Ellison to Duane Ewing, 20-year Charter Monarch, a Charter Monarch Chevron and an International certificate. Ewing is the only charter member of the Sedalia club who is still a member of Lions in Sedalia.

The Sedalia Men's Choral Club was guest of the Lions at the dinner and gave a half-hour concert, singing several numbers, one of which was dedicated to the International Vice-President.

President A. B. Warren called the meeting to order. Al Domingue song leader of the Lions Club, led the singing of "America." Kenneth A. Buchholtz, a past president of the Sedalia club, led the Pledge of Allegiance, with the invocation being given by the Rev. Harry Purviance, club chaplain.

Presentation of the Colors was given by Ernie Hyatt, of Cub Pack 65, Larry Anthes, Scouter of Troop 69, and Eddie Newland, Explorer Scout of Troop 150.

Two visiting District Governors were present, Jule Stevens, Stover, and Carl G. Munger, Savannah, Mo.

Eleven International Counsellors from Missouri were in attendance, including two from the Sedalia club, D. Kelly Scruton and E. B. Smith, all of whom were introduced.

The following Lions clubs were represented at the meeting: Alma, Alpha of Kansas City, Brookfield, Brunswick, Carrollton, Columbia, Concordia, Fayette, Fulton, Garden City, Independence, Jefferson City, Kennett, Lexington, Linn, Marshall, Maryville, Monett, North Kansas City, Orrick, Pilot Grove, Queen City of Springfield, St. Charles, St. Joseph, Savannah, Senath, Slater, Stover, Sweet Springs, Tipton, Warrensburg, Windsor, Wellington, Richmond, Lincoln, Warsaw, California and Sedalia.

Fire Levels Home Near Knob Noster

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Logan, about seven miles north of Knob Noster, was destroyed by fire, along with its contents, about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Logan received burns of the head and hands, but there were no other injuries. Mrs. Logan was visiting relatives in Reno, Nevada, and was expected home Thursday.

Possible serious injury was averted when a car which got in the way of a Knob Noster police car speeding to the fire swerved back into its own lane in time to prevent full impact. Both cars were damaged but the occupants were not hurt.

Driving the police car was Officer Charles Norman, who was on what is called the South Base Road leading from Highway 50 to White-man Air Force Base when he received a radio call about the fire. Heading north with his red light on, Norman topped a hill just as Airman James Sparrett, assigned to the base but going north to his home on the west side of the base road, turned left to enter his driveway.

Sparrett apparently saw the red light as it came over the hill and pulled his car into the right lane quickly enough to avoid a full-force collision. Trooper George Norwood investigated the accident and said that no summons was issued. Fire trucks from Knob Noster and the Johnson County truck from Warrensburg went to the Logan fire, but it was too far along to stop.

Some of the contents—furniture, silver and other belongings—were the property of Logan's son, Richard, and Richard's family, who live not more than 300 feet from his parents' home. However, the fire was confined to the parents' home and did not damage the other residence.

Hull to Investigate Irregularities in Soil Bank Operations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Hull (D-Mo.) has requested an investigation of alleged irregularities in soil bank operations in southwest Missouri and has recommended a change in the state system.

In a telegram to D. G. Monsees, chairman of the Missouri Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, he said the committee should give all eligible farmers who apply at least a partial payment instead of allotting the money on a first-come, first-served basis.

Young Girl Dies In Garage-Home Fire

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A 2½ year old girl died yesterday as fire consumed the double car garage that served as her home.

The victim was Sharon Jean Goss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Goss. The family had converted the garage, two miles outside of Jefferson City, into a home.

Goss was at work at the state sanitarium at Fulton. Mrs. Goss was hospitalized for shock.

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Considers Guerrilla Warfare

Tunisian President Says He Will Lead It If Necessary

TUNIS (AP)—President Habib Bourguiba said today that he would personally lead the Tunisian people in a guerrilla war if necessary to get French troops off Tunisian soil.

In a speech recorded for later radio delivery, he warned French authorities that any armed effort to break out of their blocked bases in Tunisia would be met by force.

Bourguiba added, however, that he did not despair of seeing wisdom gain control on the French side. He said he still wanted to negotiate with France, but only after the evacuation of the 15,000 French troops on his soil.

Tension mounted throughout the country, and the French reported increasing minor incidents involving French troops, bases and civilians.

France warned the Tunisians through diplomatic channels that further grave incidents might arise as a result of Tunisian refusal to allow French forces to supply their garrisons.

In Paris, Foreign Minister Christian Pineau scheduled a speech on the Tunisian crisis in the National Assembly this afternoon. Earlier, the Assembly voted 339-179 to accept Premier Felix Gaillard's explanation that the bombing was in "legitimate defense" against Algerian rebels headquartered in the village.

Foreign ambassadors in Tunisia who visited the village, however, reported to their governments that most of the casualties appeared to be civilians, as the Tunisian government claimed. The Tunisians said 68 men, women and children were killed, 84 were wounded and 10 were missing.

Conservatives Fail to Fill Commons Seat

LONDON (AP)—A shattering defeat in an election to fill a House of Commons vacancy cast gloom today over supporters of Britain's Conservative government.

The waning popularity of the Conservative rulers headed by Prime Minister Macmillan was pointed up dramatically in the north of England textile city of Rochdale.

The Conservatives ran a poor third to both the opposition Labor party and the normally weak Liberals.

Final returns gave Laborite Jack McCann 22,133 votes, Liberal Ludovic Kennedy 17,603 and Conservative John Parkinson 9,827.

Conservative leaders had been reconciled in advance to loss of the election, but the magnitude of the defeat came as a surprise. In a straight Conservative-Labor fight in 1955, the Conservative candidate—who died recently—beat McCann 26,518-24,928.

The outcome was no great plum since it too lost ground. Those who previously voted Conservative obviously switched to Kennedy, the Liberal, in protest against the government, a trend that has been growing in recent special parliamentary elections.

Claims Money Paid in Grant Of TV Channel

Schwartz Contends That Payment Was 'Common Knowledge'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Harris (D-Ark.) said today a House committee probing federal regulatory agencies may ask the Justice Department to prosecute Dr. Bernard Schwartz, ousted committee counsel.

Harris told a reporter Schwartz may have violated a law when he removed what he called "personal working files" from the committee's offices after his discharge Monday.

The files were delivered by Schwartz to Sen. Morse (D-Ore.) who returned them to Harris at Harris' request.

Harris said the files were official files and were the property of the committee. He said some committee members also have raised the question of whether Schwartz could be cited by the House for contempt.

Harris cited a law which provides for maximum punishment of three years imprisonment and a fine of $2,000 for anyone convicted of concealment, removal or mutilation of official files.

No committee decision has been made as to action against Schwartz, Harris emphasized, but added that "We are exploring this situation."

"It would seem," he said, "that if there has been a violation of the law, the Justice Department would take action without being urged to do so."

Harris talked with a reporter before the opening of a hearing to which Schwartz had been subpoenaed as a witness.

Committee members said they wanted to question Schwartz particularly as to what basis he had for charging that money was paid to a Federal Communications Commission member in a TV license case.

Harris said he did not know whether the payoff charge was related to a fight over Miami's TV channel 10.

"But if that is it," Harris said, "that's what it (the hearing) will be about."

On Tuesday, the day after he was fired as counsel, Schwartz handed to reporters a prepared statement in which he said the majority of the subcommittee fired him knowing that he had obtained evidence "of the payment of money to a federal communications commissioner in a comparative (contested) television case."

'Sacks' Not So Menacing

Women Feel Better After Fashion Show

Women of all sizes and shapes, who had been holding their breath over the chemise type, straight up and down dresses forecast for spring and summer fashions, were delighted with the style show Wednesday night presented by the Beta Tau Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, at Convention Hall, Liberty Park. While some of the chemise type dresses were modeled, of course, for those who can wear them, the dresses, on a whole, were flattering and beautiful in a variety of styles and materials.

Definitely feminine and as spring-like as daffodils were the dresses, suits, hats, gloves and handbags from the fluffly ruffle dress and the perky spring hat worn by the tiniest girl to Easter outfits worn by the members and former members of Beta Tau who modeled.

Silks and other soft materials in large flowered prints, fashioned with the fitted waist and full skirt seemed to be particularly popular. The prints are of deep hues and the unusual combination of greens and blues seem to be used extensively, as well as reds and orange. There are linen and linen-like dresses and suits mostly in the slimmer types including the sheath and the chemise, with these styles also used in silk materials and cottons. There are unusual back treatments to many of the dresses as well as different and pretty neckline effects. Plaids are very good this year.

Hats are lovely and wearable no matter what the hair style is and gloves are of all lengths from short to long. Handbags are mostly large with flower designs or artificial flowers as decorative note.

Coats are of all kinds from the

Sedalia Retail Merchants To Repeat Sidewalk Bazaar

The Sidewalk Bazaar, which was held for the first time last summer and was perhaps the most successful of any promotions held by the retail merchants in Sedalia, will be held again this year on Monday and Tuesday, July 28 and 29. The date was set at a general meeting of retail merchants held Thursday morning in the assembly room of the courthouse.

The meeting was presided over by William Solon, director of the retail merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce, and the recommendation of the committees of which Bob Wall is the general chairman, for one promotion day a month, was adopted by the group of merchants present. These days, in addition to the Sidewalk Bazaar in July, will be in the form of Dollar Days, Appreciation Day and Fall Festival.

The merchants also voted to continue the same store hours of 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Thursday; 9 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. on Fridays and 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Saturdays.

Days on which the merchants decided to close all day will be: Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. They will also close for a half day on Thursday during the Missouri State Fair.

The Courtesy Award Program will be continued this year but in a different manner. There will be four awards given during the year, one in February, one in May, one in August and one in November. The awards will be given by the various civic clubs and the presentations will be made at the civic club meetings.

Solon called upon Cline Cain, the chairman of the Christmas decorations committee, who told of the need for a different type of decoration now that the downtown section has a new lighting system. There are 83 new standards, he told the group, in addition to the old lights on Lamine and Osage. Although Christmas is a long way away, he asked the merchants to consider what type of decoration they would like to have and how much they would be willing to spend on it. The poles, he said, have been made with outlets for Christmas decorations. Cain gave a few suggestions and asked the group to be prepared with some ideas to be discussed later.

Solon then called on Jack Faber, executive-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who spoke briefly on industrial prospects and the need for community participation in providing funds for buildings. Industry today, he said, in most cases wants buildings on the lease basis, whether they can afford to build the buildings themselves or not, because they feel the town has a deeper interest in its own progress if it finances a building program.

There is no danger of explosion or radioactivity," the Air Force said.

Resolution Is Introduced In the House

Goes Far Beyond Recommendation Of Governor Blair

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A broad study of all Missouri's tax laws and the revenue derived from them, plus a review of possible new tax sources, was called for in a resolution introduced in the Missouri House today.

Offered by two Democrats, Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Cole County and Richard J. DeCoster, it goes far beyond the recommendation of Gov. James T. Blair yesterday.

Blair's proposal, as offered in the Senate, would confine the study to the income tax, including the possibility of using a withholding system if necessary to catch present tax evaders.

The governor warned the lawmakers in his special message they soon would have to start digging around for substantial additional state revenue.

Graham, who lives less than two blocks from the governor, said he thought the whole field of taxation should be studied. The resolution calls for:

A bipartisan committee of four senators and four representatives who could study the laws, inquire into present enforcement procedures, recommend changes in those procedures and propose "increases as may be most appropriately imposed" if present levies are found inadequate.

The committee could compare Missouri's tax structure with other states, could demand the cooperation of state agencies and could force the sworn testimony of witnesses and the production of any records desired.

The resolution was referred to committee. A somewhat similar proposal was vetoed by the governor last year.

Meanwhile the administration proposal as introduced in the Senate yesterday headed into the legislative machinery as six bills were referred to committees.

The first hearings were called for next Wednesday night when the Committee on Correctional Institutions, headed by Sen. William Orr Sawyer (D) of St. Joseph, will head two bills for changes in the state penal setup.

Other bills could not be referred because they had not come back from the printer.

The Senate got into position for passage of the special session's first bill next week as the Appropriations Committee approved a routine fund bill which passed the House yesterday. It carries $4,900,000 to pay interest on state indebtedness.

The House plans to resume work next Monday afternoon and the Senate next Tuesday. With no bills ready for actual consideration on the floor, both houses held only brief sessions today.

Ambassador Says Restrictions Are Being Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is going to give the Soviet Union a chance to make good on its new ambassador's call for "lifting all kinds of restrictions" — including those on travel.

Amiable Mikhail Menshikov swept through town yesterday like a one-man peace crusade. He paid two get-acquainted visits to the State Department and one to Vice President Nixon.

"I'm in favor of lifting all kinds of restrictions," he said in a loud, happy voice on Capitol Hill, waving his arms. "That would be better for everybody."

He gave short shrift to reporters' questions about a three-month-old formal U.S. note to the Soviet Union suggesting an end to off-limits areas in both countries.

"I haven't yet studied that question," he said. "But the restrictions are being removed all the time."

Actually, they are being added to.

For the next six weeks or so, Menshikov said, he will be paying get-acquainted calls on Cabinet members, senators and representatives, particularly Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.). After that, he said, he would like to travel a bit and see the country.

Navy Divers Look For Nuclear Weapon Part

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—Navy divers are searching off the Georgia coast for part of a nuclear weapon that was dropped into the Atlantic from a B-47.

"There is no danger of explosion or radioactivity," the Air Force said.

A statement released by Hunter Air Force Base at Savannah said the bomber jetted part of the weapon after a collision with an F86 Sabre Jet Feb. 5.

The weapon was not capable of a nuclear explosion, the statement said.

The pilot of the Sabre Jet parachuted to safety. The bomber was landed by its three-man crew at Hunter AFB.

Electric Power . . . A VITAL KEY

As Western Missouri changes from an agricultural economy to a predominant industrial economy, our 100,000 kilowatt Sibley Generating Station, now underway, is a timely catalyst in the change-over.

Power for industry, at reasonable rates, is a vital key to the increasing industrialization of our widespread service area, such as brings a new, large Western Electric facility to Lee's Summit.

Electricity is helping power the wheels of progress in Western Missouri. And you can be sure that providing adequate amounts of electric power for industry, commerce and residence is the continual responsibility of the men and women of our company who this week call attention to the observance of "National Electrical Week."

Raises Query Of Who Owns Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department witness has told congressmen more should be learned about outer space before important rules on control of space can be laid down.

Loftus Becker, the department's legal adviser, raised a question as to whether a satellite still belongs to the country which launched it once the satellite shoots out of control into space.

"Usually ownership relates to capability to grab hold of it, and I don't know what they (the Soviets) could do about Sputnik or what their remedy would be if we were to pick up this . . . piece they said fell on the West Coast," he testified.

Becker said, however, that the United States would be at a disadvantage in staking out territorial claims on the moon if others get there and this country doesn't. Becker, whose position makes him the top policymaker on these questions under Secretary of State Dulles and President Eisenhower, spoke out against various space control proposals during a closed session of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on national security.

Among others, he opposed any immediate action on proposals for a special conference on space regulation, establishment of a U.N. convention for the purpose, and giving the task to the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Becker said that really to prevent conflict in space, a view of space in international rather than national terms may have to be developed.

He said rules must be drawn up to protect people underneath space vehicles, to channel radio frequencies for space vehicle use, to govern space navigation and eventually probably to cover marriages and other legal relationships when people move into space.

But he cautioned against "too precipitate" action to set up detailed rules without more word from scientists on "what are the possibilities of controlling or doing anything in the area."

A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM REV. GARDNER:

Doctors, Nurses and Medical Science are a blessing from God. Millions of lives have been saved by their skill and help. I certainly appreciate the great work they have done to help suffering humanity.

However, I believe a living Christ is still able to heal those diseases that man can not cure. I suffered for 16 years in my own body. Modern science could not help me, but Jesus made me perfectly well. Regardless of your need—there is healing for you.

I have crossed America 53 times preaching in all 48 states and 12 foreign countries. 50,000 people in one night have attended our meetings. Over 7,000 have answered the altar call for salvation overseas and over 500 in one night in America. I have prayed for 7,000 people in one healing service, seeing blind, deaf, lepers, cancer, paralyzed, etc., healed instantly. I believe God will confirm His Word the same way here.

Social Security Used As Insurance Benefit

By Thomas F. Nash
District Manager

I was distressed the other day to learn that certain people are saying the public has been led to believe social security is a big bonanza.

The fact is that social security insurance, like other kinds of insurance, is a very good business proposition for everyone. But it has never been presented to the public as "cheap" or a "bargain."
People who contribute will get out of social security, as a group, no more than they and their employers have put into it (plus what those funds have earned in interest.)

Occasionally one of my friends points out to me that many people get more in social security benefits than they have paid in taxes.
This is true. But if it worries you, let's look for a moment at what insurance is.

Insurance is a method of furnishing financial protection against a possible loss. For example, you get insurance protection against the loss of your house by fire or windstorm, or against loss of your car by theft or accident. The U.S. social security system insures individual families against loss of earnings because of old age, or death, or disability.

In any kind of insurance some people will pay premiums longer than others. But you don't consider yourself lucky if you've been paying fire insurance on a new house for only a couple of years and it burns to the ground. You aren't lucky, because the insurance will not replace your house;

it only pays for part of your loss.
The lucky people are those whose houses didn't burn.

A young woman came into our office the other day with two children at her side, stunned in her bereavement. We were glad to report to her that because of her husband's earnings and the social security taxes he and his employer had paid, she and the children would get $150 a month in social security payments for many years.

These benefits will total a great deal more than had been paid in social security taxes. But I don't think anyone believes that widow is getting a "bargain." She has lost her partner and loved one,
the man upon whom she had relied for a lifetime of support and companionship.

Social security is able to indemnify her only for a fraction of the money income she has lost.
But perhaps it will be enough to hold her home together. I am thankful we have an insurance program that will do that much.

Recently Mr. Albert C. Adams, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, was quoted as follows:

"My first case was the most satisfying I've ever had from the standpoint of real benefit to the policyholder's family. . . I sold this young fellow on Friday. He was killed the following Tuesday in an automobile accident. . . The family really needed the money

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) —
When a moon reported
When farmer W. A. Moon reported a two-month-old theft of a dinner bell and anvil, the sheriff's office didn't let the age of the crime hamper it.

. . . The $2,500 went a long way for them, and later other members of the family bought insurance from me."

The satisfaction of paying an occasional claim when only nominal "premiums" have been paid by the beneficiary is something we share with people in the private life insurance field.

In the case of the widow whom we served, we all realize that the social security payments she and her children will receive must come in large part from the social security taxes paid by and in behalf of the hundreds of young fathers who, happily, will not die while they have families to support — and who consider it the best bargain of all that their widows won't have to claim those benefits.

Social security, U.S. style, is no something-for-nothing bargain. It is a going concern, proved by 21 years of operations, wherein working people, their employers, and recently the self-employed, pool a small percentage of their income to provide a measure of protection for those whom catastrophe strikes — the catastrophe of loss of earnings because of the breadwinner's death, or his disability, or his retirement in old age.

Today I've discussed whether it's a "bonanza" for the widow and children. Tomorrow I would like to review with you whether social security is a "bargain" or whether it's a business proposition in providing protection against the financial hazards of old age.

Another first from Ford... a brilliant new version of a great American classic

THE 4-PASSENGER THUNDERBIRD

The new 4-passenger Thunderbird abounds in luxury—yet it is priced far below other luxury cars!

Pure Thunderbird in spirit and performance, but now it seats four...with full fine-car room, comfort and luxury!

Utterly unlike any other car on the American Road, the new 4-passenger Thunderbird is the first of a new size and new type of fine automobile.

This straight-lined, low-swept jewel stands only slightly larger than the raciest car built, a mere 52.5 inches high. It handles and parks like a dream. Yet it gives enough leg, head and shoulder room to seat four varsity crewmen in lap-of-luxury comfort. And the doors are exceptionally wide—even in furs and evening dress a lady can step in and out with ease and grace.

Pure Thunderbird in design, this new 4-passenger beauty is pure Thunderbird in vigor and spirit as well. This means brilliant performance whether on Main Street or on U.S. 1.

Ford engineers have lavished their most advanced design features on the new Thunderbird: New 300-horsepower Thunderbird 352 Special V-8 Engine is a superlative precision instrument, thrilling to command. New single unit body construction molds top, body and frame into one single, solid piece of sculptured steel.

Conceived, designed and built to be the most advanced prestige car on the American Road, the new Thunderbird is so wonderfully poised, so uncannily sensitive to your every wish that you must drive it to believe it.

Visit your Ford Dealer. Let him tell you all about this exciting, different car.

Luxurious comfort and full fine-car passenger roominess distinguish the glamorous 1938 Thunderbird. The exclusive "panel console" rises from the floor and houses heater controls, ash trays, radio speaker—and power window controls serving the convenience of all four passengers. And wide, glide-through doors give you direct access to all four individually contoured seats. Clearly, the new Thunderbird is America's most individual car for purity of line, for elegance, for vigor.

Farrell Past Half Mark In Space Test

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Air Force scientists showed optimism today as Airman Donald Farrell passed the halfway mark on his simulated moon flight.

The blond, six-foot airman from the Bronx, after theoretically flying over lunar wastes, was speeding earthward again in his make-believe flight in a compact space cabin.

The airman, still bright and chipper, completed the halfway mark at 9:35 p.m. last night. His seven-day flight is scheduled to end Sunday.

"We are constantly surprised," said Lt. Col. George R. Steinkamp, "at Farrell's continual alertness, lack of fatigue, and especially his lack of boredom." Steinkamp is head of the department of space medicine, School of Aviation Medicine, at Randolph Air Force Base here.

Steinkamp and other scientists show guarded optimism over man's ability to withstand the strains and stress of air travel. But he said, "We've got to run other tests." He let it be known that Farrell is the first Air Force guinea pig for space flight tests.

It was announced at Austin, Tex., that the Air Force had contracted with the University of Texas to set up biochemical tests for preselecting space pilots. The preselections will be made at Lackland Air Force Base here. Dr. Roy B. Mefford Jr., University of Texas biochemist, said the Air Force had granted $24,903 for the tests.

Farrell, living in air pressure usually encountered at 18,000 feet, was subjected to three emergency summons. He has no way of knowing whether or not there is a real emergency.

But he continued high-efficiency performance. He made extra quick time in responding to all of them, Steinkamp said. Once he had his emergency gas mask in place in 19.5 seconds.

Air Force scientists said the many instruments attached to electrodes taped over Farrell's body show no significant changes whatever. They measure respiration, heart action, blood pressure and other physical conditions.

Only once has the 23-year-old son of a Wall Street accountant shown signs of irritation. He can have either radio music or taped music channeled into his space cabin. He signaled for radio music.

Taped music was turned on. He snapped his signal switch, but was ignored. Displaying aggravation, he snapped it on and off several times. Finally, said Steinkamp, raucous hillbilly music was turned on. Farrell flipped it off and shrugged his shoulders.

He amazes his watchers with his lack of boredom. Cozy and warm, he ate a turkey dinner with evident relish. He takes copious notes on his feelings and thoughts as part of the experiment.

His watchers say he stays busy and call him "a great chow hound."

Will Put Heat On Auto Men About Smog

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thirteen experts, convinced that smog has become a nationwide menace to health and happiness, will meet in Washington Feb. 21 to put the heat on the auto industry.

The group is the Advisory Council to the U. S. Surgeon General on Air Pollution Problems, made up of scientists, medical men and air pollution specialists. Its contentions are these:

1. The automobile is the last, and so far uncontrollable, major source of the noxious fumes that regularly besmirch the atmosphere of American cities, bringing discomfort to millions.

2. Unless cut off, the fumes will certainly worsen smog in cities already affected and will ultimately create smog problems where air is now pure.

The experts intend to ask auto industry executives to go all out in developing a device to reduce or eliminate the automobile's contribution to air pollution.

They say privately that auto men have dragged their feet on working up an anti-smog device, apparently under the impression that the smog-car problem is peculiar to the Los Angeles region where the loudest outcries have been heard.

The facts are, say the experts, that half a dozen major cities—including auto headquarters itself, Detroit—already consider auto exhaust a serious smog problem, and more than 200 cities deem it a factor in their air pollution picture.

The group's goal: a cheap—$25 to $50—device to be built into all new cars that will effectively filter, or burn, unconsumed gasoline vapors.

Sedalian Has Heart Attack After Home Is Destroyed By Fire

Fire believed to have started from a bathroom gas heater destroyed the home and its contents of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Jones, 434 North Washington, at 5:51 p.m. Wednesday. Mrs. Jones suffered a heart attack a few hours after the fire and is in a critical condition at Bothwell Hospital.

Jones was just leaving the J. A. Lamy Manufacturing Co. where he works when his brother-in-law, Arthur Brame, 105 East Cooper, arrived and told him his house was burning.

The Sedalia Fire Department was at the blaze when Jones arrived, but the house was too far gone to save anything.

Mrs. Jones was in the house at the time of the fire, but escaped without burns. Her heart attack, which occurred about four hours later, was attributed to the excitement of the fire. She was rushed from Brame's home to the Bothwell Hospital by the Alexander ambulance and was treated by Dr. C. C. Reynolds.

Fashion Show

(Continued From Page One) long oval type, the chemise type, the short, and even a fingertip coat in pastel pink which doesn't look like a rain coat at all but which sheds rain.

Little girls and teenagers found a wide selection of fashions for all occasions with the little sailor style dresses for street and school and the very fussy full-skirted frocks worn over can-can petticoats. Sashes are popular, too, from those made of material of the dress to the wide ribbon kind that tie in a big bow in the back.

Hats have nylon ruffles and flower trim and are every shape. Little white nylon stretch gloves gave just the right touch to the outfits along with the little handbags flowers that were all kinds of shapes from baskets to umbrellas.

The clothes for men this year are easy to wear with mixtures of silk and wool a favorite and gray in dark and light shades is popular. The combination of the dark trousers with light jackets seems to set the pace for spring in men's fashions, and boys, too, with the trousers or slacks in plain materials and the jackets in plaids or stripes. The colors are combinations of blacks and grays, brown and beige, and shades of blue.

This year fashions for the males offer a wear-as-you-please opportunity, mix or match. The three-button coat is good this year and shirts are styled to give that well-dressed jaunty appearance. And shirts—well, they even come in drip-dry materials, wonderful for hot weather.

It is still Ivy League, with the boys in the jackets with three buttons, shirts, slacks and caps. Slacks of rayon and nylon are completely washable and like their dads the youngsters are wearing the dark slacks with sports jackets in plaids, broken plaids and stripes picking up the color of the slacks in the jackets. There are hats that will stand all kinds of abuse and little caps, all with a nifty air.

The fashion show was presented to a large crowd. "The Street of Dreams" theme with its motor boat that seemed to be set in ocean waves with the backdrop showing a typical resort setting, seemed very fitting for the array of fashions.

Narrator was Mrs. Carl Yates. Stores participating were: Flowers, Lockett's, Lad and Lassie Shop, Patterson's, Jiedel Vogue, Sage's, Burton's, Connor-Wagoner, Russell Brothers, Mullin's Men's Wear, Youth Shop, Maxine's, Ellis' and Wilson's.

Virgil Lee Aguirre was sentenced to three years imprisonment with the Missouri State Department of Corrections after having pleaded guilty to a charge of passing a bad check. Circuit Court Judge Dimmit Hoffman gave the sentence Wednesday after hearing the plea and the state's case presented by Prosecuting Attorney Harold Barrick.

Aguirre passed the check, the court found, "with intent to injure and defraud" at Priddy's Shoe Store in Sedalia, for $10.15, on Nov. 29, 1957. It was drawn on the Union Savings Bank and was signed "V. Berry," an alias. Aguirre also admitted using the name "Buck Berry" as an alias. After being informed of his legal rights by Judge Hoffman, he declined to be represented by legal counsel.

Phillip Robert Riter pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy in circuit court Wednesday and was sentenced to two years imprisonment with the Missouri State Department of Corrections. The court found that Riter married Lou Eva Green, Jan. 12, 1957, having at that time a lawful wife, Dorothea Mae Riter.

Tells Optimists

Current Cold Spell Agrees With Finnish Student Here

Esko Ollila, American Field Exchange Student from Finland was the speaker at Optimist Club Tuesday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Finland, said Esko, is the most northerly country in the world and he pointed out that the climate in Sedalia for the past few weeks has been very pleasant. The winter in the north of Finland, where he lives, is always zero and often far below. They see the sun very few times, and skating and skiing are popular sports there. During the time the Liberty Park lagoon has been frozen over he has been skating there.

In the summer in Finland, the sun even forgets to set, Esko told the group, and the tourists have to have double curtains in order to sleep—but the people of Finland think nothing of it. They have no trouble sleeping.

Finland, he said, is a fisherman's paradise. It has 70,000 lakes. The Finnish people have a different language from all other European languages. He feels that if people could only know each other there would be no fears of war on either side of the iron curtain because people are the same all over the world. The news and the headlines in the Finnish papers are exactly the same as in the American papers because both countries have exactly the same Associated Press and United Press stories.

The American standard of living has impressed him most, Esko said. It is higher than that of Finland, and Finland does not have nearly so many cars. He likes American food, too, and has gained ten pounds since he has been here.

When asked what reindeer were used for in Finland he replied, "Meat." There is nothing so good as reindeer steak, he said, except American hamburgers.

Esko intends to correct some wrong impressions of Americans in Finland which the Finnish people get from American movies. The movies, he pointed out, do not give the right idea of America and American youth. He said they liked the American movies but they are screwball pictures and do not really give the true picture of the people. That is not good, he pointed out, and is one of the things that can be serious.

He said the people of Finland were thankful for the loan from America because it was the only country that would give a loan when Finland needed it very much to rebuild.

There are not many cars because the only industry Finland has is wood and paper and so it does not have much to trade the United States and the money from what it does have goes for medical instruments.

Esko said he had had five years of English but it was different from the kind he found in America. He has learned enough American slang now that he can follow what the people here are saying.

Jay Lazerson, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Claude L. Boul, president, conducted the meeting and invocation was by the Rev. James Schrader. Charles Hanna led the singing, with Miss Lillian Fox as accompanist.

Dan Robinson, in whose home Esko is living while here, told the group it was a real education to have a youngster from another country in his home and he wouldn't have missed it for anything.

He said the American Association of University Women, sponsoring the American Field Student program here, was in need of a home for next year for a girl or boy.

Other guests were J. C. Hull, sheriff of Morgan County, Abe Silverman and Jack Faber, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Homemakers in Moniteau County are looking forward to the annual Farm and Home Conference which is being held Friday, Feb. 14, in California. The morning session will be held in the courtroom and the afternoon session especially for the ladies will be held in the Methodist Church basement in California.

Almost every homemaker is interested in short cuts in food preparation. The use of labor saving appliances can cut hours from food preparation time. Electronic cooking is still in the future but, like other appliances which have become commonplace, it, too, will find a place in everyday living.

Choosing, using and caring for small electrical kitchen appliances will be stressed at the ladies meeting at the Farm and Home Conference. Mrs. Margaret Calhoun, home agent of Miller County, will demonstrate using small electrical appliances and use of the electronic oven at this Friday's meeting.

The committee in charge of arrangements is Mrs. Walter Strobel, Mrs. Floyd Weisser, Mrs. Norman Schoenthal, Mrs. E. O. Renken and Mrs. Roy Gabert.

Mrs. Clark Howard will preside at the meeting.

Grated cheddar cheese is delicious sprinkled over very hot cooked drained buttered broccoli. The green and yellow colors look pretty together, too!

Then they are allowed to gather up booklets of different kinds, a telephone address book, a telephone almanac, and several others.

And down the steps and out they go to the bus where they wait until all the rest of the other groups have gone through.

Before You Throw Away Those Littered Rolls

over rolls, try the following ideas. Here are three ways to serve leftover rolls piping hot. First, get out your aluminum foil and tear a piece large enough to wrap the rolls air tight. Wet foil—shake off excess water. Wrap rolls snugly and place in a 350 degree F. oven until hot — 15 to 20 minutes. Serve rolls in the foil wrapping and they will stay hot.

For the second suggestion you need a brown paper bag. Moisten rolls by dipping them quickly in excess water. Shake off any excess water and put rolls in the paper bag. Twist top of bag and place in 350 degree F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Here's the third idea. Put two or three tablespoons of water in a chicken fryer or other skillet with a well fitted lid. Put rack in skillet and place the rolls on it. Cover and leave oven on low heat ten to 15 minutes.

Leftover rolls may also be sliced and made into melba toast by toasting about 30 minutes in a 300 degree F. oven.

Lane Claims Woodling Not Player Sought

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

"The only trouble between me and Gene Woodling," Frank Lane said today, "is that Gene is a left fielder and not the second baseman I'm looking for."

No feud? No blasts from Woodling about Lane's contract edict?

"We 'feuded' all the way home from a father-and-son dinner we attended last night," said Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians. "Gene drove me home in his car."

"I'll tell you something else," added Lane. "Vic Wertz called me up and we agreed to terms for his contract. What's more, Vic said he wanted to report to spring training three or four days early."

This "feud" business started when Lane announced the other day that he told the Indians who hadn't accepted 1958 contract terms he'd trim $100 off his offer each day they remained unsigned after the official opening of spring training March 1.

That was followed by a report that Woodling blasted the edict as unfair.

"Gene had a good year last season and we're offering him a substantial raise. We haven't arranged for a contract meeting, but I don't expect any trouble," Lane said.

All of the five Indians still unsigned are veterans—Minnie Miñoso, Chico Carrasquel, Bobby Avila, Jim Hegan and Woodling.

An Associated Press survey today showed that about 25 per cent of the players on major league rosters still are unsigned. That number includes Hank Aaron, Ed Mathews, Lew Burdette, Red Schoendienst, Johnny Logan, Del Crandall and Bob Buhl of the Milwaukee Braves and Yankee Mickey Mantle.

The Braves, finding it's always difficult for a club to get its contracts filed after winning the world championship, have 18 unsigned players in all. That total is second only to the Boston Red Sox's 19.

Easy Victories Feature Play In Optimist League

One-sided scores featured play in the Optimist Basketball League last night as Optimist A, Sedalia Democrat, and Phillips 66 turned in easy victories.

Optimist A scored a 42-17 victory over the First Baptist in the opener with a well-balanced scoring attack that saw every man in the line-up scoring. With the score 12-2 at the end of the first quarter the Optimist coasted in.

Using a big height advantage the Democrat controlled the backboards to jump off to a 25-point lead at half-time over the Optimist B and then held off second half long-shots to maintain their margin and win 43-12.

The final game saw Phillips 66 also employ superior height and good ball-handling to jump off to an early lead and increase their margin as the game progressed to win 42-8 over the Sedalia Capital.

Virginia Tech Ahead

KANSAS CITY (AP)—West Virginia Tech still is way ahead of other NAIA basketball teams in the scoring department, but John Butcher of second-place Pikeville (Ky) College is doing his best to help catch up.

Butcher leads the individual scorers among the small colleges with 321 points a game, a total of 668 in 27 games. Pikeville has a 93.4 average behind West Virginia Tech's 105.2.

Ohioans Get Cage Talent In Robertson

By DON WEISS
The Associated Press

Looks more and more as if the Cincinnati, Ohioans got away with about the tidiest hunk of college basketball talent around when they latched on to 19-year-old Oscar Robertson from the Indianapolis, Indiana's a year and a half ago.

Oscar, the brilliant Bearcat, started 'em with Cincinnati's freshman team last year, excited the most blasé New York critics with a 56-point show a couple weeks ago . . . and last night? Well, Robbie just about cinched the Bearcats' first trip to the NCAA championships.

The former Indianapolis high school whiz scored 40 points as Cincinnati whipped Bradley 94-77 to open a 1½ game lead in the battle for the Missouri Valley Conference title. He scored 31 points in the second half, 18 of them in a five-minute stretch after Bradley, made the score 58-55.

While Robertson was letting himself go some of the nation's other bigwigs were improving their qualifications for post-season tournaments.

West Virginia, ranked No. 2 a step behind Kansas State and a step ahead of Cincinnati, clinched the regular season title in the Southern Conference, crushing VMI 104-58. The Mountaineers' Jerry West had 22 points as Freddie Schaus' club made it 32 straight conference victories and 19 wins in 20 games this season.

Sixth-ranked Oklahoma State, sought by both the NCAA and the National Invitation tournaments while playing as an independent this year, walloped 20th-ranked Oklahoma 70-50 for a 16-2 record.

And Temple, now No. 7, reeled off its 16th straight win 71-61 over LaSalle as Guy Rodgers scored 25 points for a school career record of 1,545.

Dayton, also a prize tournament catch, made it 12 straight with a 62-53 defeat of DePaul. Notre Dame, with Tommy Hawkins scoring 33, spilled Butler 90-81 and the Ivy League leader, Dartmouth, won its eighth straight league game 76-64 over Harvard.

Extra sessions were needed for St. Joseph's (Pa.) to nip Villanova 86-82, Nebraska to down Missouri 67-62, Houston to measure North Texas 73-70, Bowling Green to beat Toledo 74-69, and Furman to edge South Carolina 79-78.

Otterville Wins One, Prairie Home One, In Cooper Tournament

Otterville and Prairie Home switched wins in two cage tilts in the Cooper County tourney at Bunceston Tuesday night. The Otterville boys were winners by a 44-40 count, and the Prairie Home girls came out winners by 28-22.

This put the Otterville boys in line for the championship game of the Cooper County Affairs Thursday night. The Otterville girls will play the Pilot Grove team for third place Thursday night at Bunceston.

In the boys game Tuesday, Jimmie Sells of Prairie Home was high scorer for the evening with 28 points, and E. H. Fowler and Clyde Paul tied for high score for Otterville with 14 points each. Prairie Home took the lead in the first quarter, but trailed to the last stanza, when they netted a 15-11 with a 8-18 count. The third quarter saw Knob Noster slow down and drop an 18-22 count to the winning team. High scorer for the Knob Noster team was A. Mary Stegner of Prairie Home, who tied with 11 points each. High scorer for the Otterville five was June Sanders with eight points.

Heston Likes To Dabble In Television

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—According to the Hollywood code, Charlton Heston should avoid television like the bubonic plague.
After all, the guy is starring in what will be three of the top six money-making movies of all time, "The Greatest Show on Earth," has a worldwide gross of 20 million," he says. "The Ten Commandments," judging from all available estimates, may go as high as 100 million. "Ben-Hur"—who knows? It could go as high as "The Ten Commandments."

Despite this high finance, Heston continues to dabble in TV, which pays him considerably less than films. Recently, he appeared in the Shirley Temple fable "Beauty and the Beast." A week from tonight, he's appearing on Playhouse 90 in John P. Marquand's "Point of No Return."
This called for an explanation, and I demanded it while Heston grabbed a lunch between rehearsals.
"Marlon Brando doesn't do TV," I said. "Gregory Peck doesn't do it, nor Gary Cooper, nor Burt Lancaster, nor almost every other top name. Why do you?"
"Because I like it," he replied simply. "I can't explain why other actors don't do it. Perhaps some of them don't have stage training and are afraid of doing live shows."

"I do it because I enjoy doing it, because I think an actor should keep working, because I can reach an audience that I wouldn't be able to reach with a movie. And in TV, I can do roles that I wouldn't get a chance to do in films."
Heston will receive $250,000 to enact Ben-Hur. MGM will put up the actor and his family in a villa near Rome for the eight-month shooting period.
Some actors would shun such a long project, but Heston reasons: "I think this will be a good time to be away from Hollywood. My agents tell me the movie industry is going to be in a bad way for two years. I'll be tied up for one of those years, so I think it's pretty good timing."

Attorney Tells About 'Overworld' Group

LOS ANGELES (AP)—As if the underworld weren't enough of a problem, Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson has come up with something new to worry about: "the overworld."

BY WILSON SCRUGGS

"The overworld," McKesson explained at a Crime Prevention Week luncheon, "is a sinister segment of society seeking special favors because of wealth, position, party, influence, standing, or whom one knows."
He said it is "corruption in control of our economic life, working under a cloak of respectability, but still living off ill-begotten gains of patronage and special interest."

Will Set Up Schools For Problem Cases

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Gov. Averell Harriman have agreed on using four existing schools to accommodate problem children in an effort to cut crime in the city's schools.

After the mayor and governor conferred for 2½ hours, Harriman said he is prepared to draw up a supplemental budget providing further state aid, with an eye toward buying or leasing facilities for additional state correctional institutions.

The city now has five special schools. The new "specials" would be opened within a month in old buildings now vacant or only partially used, Wagner said. Two other special schools are planned for use next September.

Wagner said the four extra schools would be able to care for 600 to 800 students. He said it would cost the city about $125,000 to get each of the schools in shape.

The Board of Education has suspended 644 students who had been charged with insubordination or acts of violence.

In recent weeks, a number of the city's 900 schools have been the scene of rapes, assaults, stab-bings and delinquency. The incidents have involved both Negro and white students.

Among other proposals advanced at the conference, Harriman said, was a "work-activity program," whereby pupils would be permitted to work part-time during regular school hours.
Harriman said he would veto any measure which would change the state law requiring compulsory education up to the age of 17.

Students included in the mass suspensions last week will get individual hearings to help decide whether they return to a regular school, a special school, or an institution.

Rescuers Near Boy Injured in Canyon

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Rescuers worked today at the 5,000-foot level on Mt. San Geronimo to reach a 14-year-old boy lying helpless after a 300-foot fall into a snowy canyon.

A sheriff's deputy who took part in an earlier rescue attempt said Donald Burns was lying in a grotesque position, as though he may have suffered bone fractures.

Burns, of nearby Colton, was hiking with schoolmates yesterday when he slipped on an icy trail at the top of Big Falls. He fell with the cascading water about 100 feet to a ledge. The falling water pushed him from the ledge and he fell another 200 feet to the bottom of the canyon.

The boy waved and yelled intermittently for five hours after the fall, then was silent.

U.S. Forest Service workers and sheriff's officers tried to bring the youngster out but couldn't get down into the canyon because their rope wouldn't reach far enough.

If you want your scrambled eggs to be really creamy, cook them over hot water.

Tommy Keeps Mighty Atlas Right at His Fingertips

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Special Correspondent
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — (NEA)—This is about Tommy Zannes, a young man who symbolizes our New Year's prayers for peace through strength. He pushes the button that projects Atlas, America's first intercontinental missile, into space.

When Atlas graduates from this test range to mass production, it will be capable of carrying nuclear shells from the United States 5,500 miles to all essential Soviet points of power.

Tommy Zannes is a civilian soldier in the image of Daniel Boone, Eddie Rickenbacker, Audie Murphy.

However, because tomorrow's war will be centuries more intricate than struggles against Indians, the Kaiser's armies or Hitler's Wehrmacht, Tommy, at 35, is older than the glorified GI.

Modern gadgetry requires little muscle; Tommy is slight, short, small-boned. But his black button eyes are as intense and curious as radar and his brain is an instant calculator shuffling a thousand fractions of scientific fact.

Tommy, born of Greek immigrant parents in Massachusetts and raised in Miami, from his earliest days looked to the frontier of the skies.

Behind his father's restaurant he clipped news shorts of Rickenbacker, Byrd and Lindbergh, watched aircraft soar over Biscayne Bay and lovingly built model planes. With war, he flew fighters and then gliders and learned foxhole horrors when he landed foot soldiers behind Japanese lines on Luzon.

With peace, Tommy realized—reading about German V-1 and V-2 rockets—that planes, like covered wagons, were en route to museums. He studied mechanical engineering at the University of Miami and aeronautics at Cornell and then worked on Bell Aircraft's primary air-to-ground missile, the Shrike.

Two years ago he joined Convair, charged with creating an intercontinental ballistic missile, and labored on the Atlas until he knew its qualities and quirks like a mother knows her growing child.

When Atlas left the plant, ready for initial flight, obviously there was one person to guide her—Tommy Zannes. For, despite popular misunderstanding, the man who pushes the button is himself no robot. His mind must X-ray the vehicle from warhead through fuel pool to fin.

The first Atlas went on its launching pad June 11. Tommy pressed the button. It hardly stirred.

When I write "no luck" or "hardly stirred," I mean that to the waiting nation, humiliated by Soviet progress, it did not provide the desired Page One photograph of a white, 90-foot, 50-ton cigar blasting upward.

It was hard for Tommy Zannes to explain. He didn't try. These "dogs" were not failures, not at all. What had to be learned was learned.

There are endless bugs to evict. Lord knows how many Soviet ICBMs fizzled before they concluded one potent enough to elevate Sputnik.

On Dec. 17 the third Atlas—Tommy calls it "the Queen"—was ready to be "tweaked." President Eisenhower was in Paris trying to bolster sagging Allied morale. The press, American and foreign, watched through binoculars.

Picture the scene: As a tropical Florida dawn brightens the whitecaps a red warning ball rises on a telephone-type pole. Radio, planes and crash boats unite to clear aircraft and ships in a path sweeping south of the Bahamas.

Smoke rings "the Queen's" head from liquid fuel poured by men in protective suits with plastic face masks. "Bird watchers"—some in swim trunks—assemble on beaches.

The countdown now. Tommy dictates. Each count must satisfy him.

"X minus three minutes." The missile stands lonesome. All have retreated to blockhouses. Tommy, wearing an inter-com, is before a vast control board; dials, lights, oscilloscopes, radarscopes. There

Is your home prepared to meet a crisis in the absence of the man of the house?

There are women who, though intelligent enough to cope with large emergencies such as blackouts and leaks, go to pieces when confronted with a wasp or mouse in the house.

I know a woman who became hysterically trapped in a room with two children because of a buzzing bee, an insect she feared. Another woman aroused neighbors because a squealing half-dead mouse was caught in a trap, set by her husband, who was away on a business trip. She could not bring herself to touch it. (A shovel in the backyard would have come in handy for mouse disposal).

A man may provide a house for his family and then go off to work or on an extended business trip without explaining such vital things as (1) what to do if the electricity fails (2) location of fuse boxes (3) how to raise the damper in the fireplace.

Every home should have an emergency advice list hanging in a conspicuous place. It will help the lady of the house and the baby sitter as well. Day workers, for instance, cannot always report a fire in the house properly because they do not even know the address of the house at which they are working, having been picked up at a bus stop or the employment agency by the employer. (One Connecticut day helper called the fire department, and knew the street she was on, but did not know which town she was in. Both towns had streets of the same name.)

Here's some advice that might appear on the emergency list:

1. Location of fuses. (Label fuses at box with indelible ink showing area they affect.)

2. If a storm is a threat to lights and power, fill bathtub with water, wash dirty clothes and dirty dishes at once, fill up bottles, pails and jars with water.

3. Keep a fire extinguisher in a handy place, and leave instructions on how to use it. Water should never be used on fat or oil fires.

4. Attach electric cords to appliances before plugging them in the wall and never leave a cord dangling from the wall outlet. Make sure plug attachment has no chance of coming in contact with water around sinks, for instance.

5. Stress, that in case of fire, the first thought should be for the occupants of the house. Tell the housewife how to escape from various rooms of the house in case she is trapped by fire.

6. Greasy paper or oil rags thrown in the fireplace can cause a chimney fire. Use only twigs or kindling to help start fires.

7. Instructions where flashlights and candles may be found in emergencies.

8. Make sure that fire tools for the chimney are long enough to reach the damper, particularly in case of fire started mistakenly.

9. If floods occur in the cellar, do not enter it or attempt to turn on the lights while the water is high.

10. Telephone numbers of the plumber, electrician, fuel and power companies, and other emergency numbers such as fire and police.

Science Takes A Gigantic Stride With Secrets Gained

SPECTACULAR MISFIRE: The Vanguard rocket blew up on its Cape Canaveral launching pad Dec. 6 after hopes had been built up that it would lift the first U.S. satellite into orbit. The possibility of failure, some scientists said, should have received more emphasis since this was the very first test of the three-stage Vanguard with all stages operational.

Science took one of its periodic giant strides in 1957. The fabulous dividends will start coming in 1958. Russian Sputniks began exploring space, giving the first turn of the key to human space travel.

This act seized the imagination of the world. It did more. It awakened a slumbering American public, and other peoples, to keen realization that scientists cannot be regarded as peculiar cousins in the human family—that science truly is one of the most vital forces in our lives.

And it dramatized as nothing else the purpose and meaning of the International Geophysical Year.

This 18-month cooperative study by scientists of 64 nations began July 1, 1957. By its close Jan. 1, 1958, scientists will have wrested new secrets from the sun, from the air, from space, the oceans, cosmic rays—forces from earth-quakes to weather which influence human destinies.

Launching artificial moons to circle the earth is one main aspect to IGY.

The Russians, in a tremendous scientific achievement, did it first, on Oct. 4, 1957—the first date in the new space calendar.

Soviet scientists astounded every-one but themselves with tremen-ous rocketry science which sent a 184-pound sphere wheeling around the earth.

They repeated Nov. 3 with a second Sputnik, this one carrying the first living passenger into space—the dog Laika. Laika died a week later, after demonstrating that life can be supported for a time at least in the mysterious and unfriendly reaches of space.

Russia's success galvanized the U.S. IGY satellite program to faster action, moving up the dates for firing six-pound instrumented test spheres into orbits. The first Vanguard satellite launching vehicle, however, malfunctioned in takeoff and blew up on its launching pad in the glare of world-wide publicity.

Early in 1958, the United States begins sending up 21-pound spheres equipped with ingenious instruments to take new measurements of the sun, meteors, cosmic rays, temperatures, and other forces in the height where—until Russia pioneered—nothing made by human hands had ever penetrated.

Russia plans still more Sputniks.

Under IGY agreement, the knowledge learned by these space pioneers is to be shared freely and fully, as are all measurements and discoveries made during the IGY.

U.S. scientists sent some tiny messengers out to roam space, never to return. They were a couple of fragments of aluminum from a rocket nose exploded 50 miles up in the air. The fragments reached more than sufficient speed, about 11 miles per second, to escape the earth's gravity entirely. Perhaps they fell into the sun. Perhaps they are still traveling somewhere.

Russia's feat spurred the United States to realization she was falling behind in at least some phases of science. The USSR is training more scientists, putting relatively greater stress on basic research to learn new facts about nature which make new scientific steps possible.

Almost overnight, this promised to change the climate for science in this country.

Scientific knowledge and research showed its values elsewhere during the year.

A new type of flu bug raced around the world, but its attack here was blunted by quick production of a vaccine.

Two Chinese scientists working at Columbia University upset what had been a fundamental of physics—the law of parity. Their brilliant work won them a Nobel prize and opens the way to clearer understanding of the jungle which is the heart of atoms.

London Probe On Bank Rate Is 'Big Show'

Skeletons Pop From Closets As Leaks Show

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — The best show in London is not an American musical or a French bedroom farce, but a humdrum government inquiry into the recent Bank Rate increase—"The Big Leak," as it is called—to which admission is free.

There is none of the gilt and red plush atmosphere usually associated with a smash-hit. The banking drama is being unfolded at Church House, Westminster, where the bishops of the Church of England meet in solemn conclave once a year.

If there are no bishops on hand for the government hearings, everyone else of importance seems to turn up. Audiences range from members of Parliament, financial editors, stock brokers and civil servants to society dames and Nubar Gulbenkian, the Armenian oil king ("Absolutely fascinating, I wouldn't miss this for worlds," Gulbenkian declares).

A government tribunal headed by Lord Justice Parker is investigating rumors that a "leak" prior to the Bank Rate being raised from five to seven per cent on Sept. 19 led to a few speculators making a tidy profit on the stock market from their inside tip.

Leakages aside, the Royal Stock Exchange was the scene of feverish activity the day before the Bank Rate was boosted two per cent to become the highest in 30 years.

Over $12,000,000 worth of gilt-edged securities were unloaded by three London banking firms, alone, and stock jobbers complain that selling continued long after the exchange closed.

But this is only a small part of the drama being played before the Parker tribunal. Spectators at Church House are led on a conducted tour of a whole new world, on which is often discussed, but seldom glimpsed in action—the world of high finance.

If there is one fallacy that the Parker tribunal has knocked in the head, it is that the British businessman is taciturn. He is the most talkative creature in the world, judging from the government hearing. The bars, club-rooms and chop-houses of the city fairly seethe with gossip and tittle-tattle.

The most chance encounter and the most casual remark, however, are apt to take on an ominous significance at a government hearing. Take the case of Oliver Poole, deputy chairman of the Conservative Party, and Lord Drogheda, director of The Financial Times.

When these two collide in the bar of the Old Vic Theatre in between acts of "Hamlet," neither dreams that the conversation which ensues will later be picked up, magnified and cross-examined before the Parker tribunal. Why is it of public interest? Because the chance meeting takes place on the eve of the Bank Rate rise.

Or take the case of pretty, 19-year-old Susan Chataway, who works for the Conservative Central Office. One has the impression that she is merely acting as the agent of a larger destiny when she steps into the 9:05 commuters' special for London on Sept. 25. For there in her compartment is her second cousin who works for the Foreign Office. What imp, one wonders, pushes Susan to boast of her job at the Conservative headquarters.

"I say, what a lark," the cousin exclaims. "I suppose you get an opportunity to leak all sorts of information."

"I wouldn't be surprised if the police call around any day," Susan replies mysteriously. Then, enjoying her cousin's bewilderment, she adds, "It's about this Bank Rate business."

The cousin is plainly aghast. "Good God," he cries, "you didn't know of it in advance?" "Yes, we

Mrs. Lehman Is Host To Benevolent Society

Mrs. D. W. Lehman, California, was hostess to 12 members of the California Christian Church Benevolent Society on Thursday afternoon at the church.

Mrs. Roy L. Kay was the program leader and also conducted the devotional part of the program. Her topic was "A Sense of Mission Begins At Home." Those who assisted her on the program were Mrs. C. E. Baldwin, Miss Laura V. Meyer, Mrs. D. W. Lehman, Mrs. Oscar Wegener and Miss Ella Hirt.

Ten dollars was given by the society to the Week of Compassion.

During the social hour which followed the hostess served a dessert course.

who got their start in the New Orleans cotton trade in 1847, and who followed the gold rush to California to make their fortune.

Chairman of Lazard Brothers is Lord Kindersley, 58, whose bosom harbors the dilemma of the man who acts in a dual capacity as a director of the Bank of England, and as chairman or director of a number of private firms. To whom does he owe his first allegiance?

As a Bank of England director, Lord Kindersley has prior knowledge that the Bank Rate is to be raised. As chairman of Lazard's, he must blot this knowledge out of his mind. Indeed, Lord Kindersley isn't even consulted when Lazard's decide to sell $4,000,000 worth of gilt-edged securities—it is too trivial a matter to bother the chairman with, his associates claim.

All the same, Lazard's makes a $90,000 profit on the deal, for the firm buys back nearly half the securities after the Bank Rate has been raised.

How to divorce the "public sector" of his mind from the "private sector" is Lord Kindersley's dilemma. A lesser man might crack, develop a split personality under the strain. Indeed, Lord Justice Parker finds the effort called for to be "superhuman." "One must be good at poker," is his lordship's acid comment.

knew," Susan replies, relishing her triumph.

And now here is Susan before the Parker tribunal explaining that it was all a joke. Is it her fault if her cousin lacks a sense of humor?

After this curtain-raiser, the scene shifts from the money marts of the city to a lonely grouse moor near Dumfries, Scotland. Here, early in September, William Keswick, chairman of Matheson and Co., bankers, is entertaining as his guest Nigel Birch, Economic Secretary to the Treasury.

What was said? Why did Keswick cut short his holiday in Scotland and hurry back to London to advise a Hong Kong subsidiary to sell over $3,000,000 worth of gilt-edged securities and to buy American bonds and equities? "It is anti-British and derogatory to sterling," Keswick wrote to the Hong Kong firm, "but it makes sense to me."

Now to center stage advances Lazard Brothers, the banking firm founded by three French brothers

Ike Assumes Gigantic Task Of Containing Red Advance

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration opened 1957 trying to contain Soviet Russia in the Middle East and is closing the year trying to catch up with Soviet science in the sky.
It was a year of varied confusion and surprise setbacks in the Western camp. For the Soviets, it was a year of Kremlin upheaval and stunning scientific-military advances.
At year's end, an ailing President Eisenhower was faced with the self-appointed task of pulling the Western alliance closer together. With British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, he envisioned a long-haul wartime-like cooperation among the allies to resist Russia's Sputnik-sparked advances.

Khrushchev Rides High
In Moscow, Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev was riding high. He had eliminated all immediately threatening opposition to his leadership. He was stirring things up in the Middle East. He had the "ultimate weapon" — the intercontinental ballistic missile. And his scientists had flung Sputniks I and II out of this world.
But not everything went Khrushchev's way in 1957. Despite intrigues and propaganda, aided by the Kremlin, King Hussein's pro-Western government survived in Jordan.

Khrushchev's bluster and his threats failed to terrify Turkey or cause the NATO nations to falter in their determination to strengthen their bases with American-made nuclear missiles.

Communist Poland, steering a cautious course away from Kremlin domination, accepted 95 million dollars in U. S. aid and applied for more.

The year 1957 saw leadership changes in all the big four nations except the United States.

President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon were inaugurated into their second terms Jan. 20. By November, Eisenhower's third illness in two years — this time a mild cerebral stroke — brought forth some suggestions that he resign. But Eisenhower kept his own counsel.

Russia, meanwhile, has gone through leadership contortions. In February, Andrei Gromyko replaced Dmitri Shepilov as foreign minister. Then, in June and October the big bombs fell.

At Khrushchev's behest, during a meeting lasting from June 22 to June 29, the central committee of the Kremlin ousted from office: Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov, Lazar Kaganovich, Maxim Saburov, Mikhail Pervukhin and Shepilov.

Premier Nikolai Bulganin was eclipsed by Khrushchev, then firmly in the saddle.

Zhukov Bounced
Four months later, Georgi Zhukov — elevated in the June shake-up to defense minister — also was bounced.

In France, there were three prime ministers — Guy Mollet, Maurice Bourgès-Maunoury, and Felix Gaillard.

The British started out with Anthony Eden as prime minister, then switched to Macmillan when the ailing Eden stepped down.

There was stability in another Western stronghold, however. The ageless Konrad Adenauer was re-elected as head man in West Germany.

The United States and Russia gave some signs during the year of trying to get along. Their representatives met for months in London — together with those of Britain, France and Canada — trying to agree on a disarmament formula. In the end, the talks collapsed. But U. S.-Soviet talks in Washington, on stepping up exchanges of persons and information, continued behind closed doors.

There were a number of times when the Allies were unable to get along among themselves.

The year opened with a sharp split over the Suez Canal. The United States had strongly opposed the British-French-Israeli fighting with Egypt.

The French were angered at the British-American shipment of arms to Tunisia. And there was no single Western policy toward France's exhaustive battle against rebels in Algeria.

The British went into action on the side of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman against insurgents, and the United States obviously disapproved.

The future of the Mediterranean island of Cyprus tore apart the British, Greeks and Turks — with the United States trying to foster a solution acceptable to all.

West Germany fell out with Yugoslavia, breaking relations with Tito's government after it recognized the Communist regime in East Germany.

Suez Overshadowed
The Suez dispute was overshadowed during the year by new difficulties in the Middle East.

Eisenhower got congressional support for his Middle East plan. Briefly, it pledged to fight if necessary against Communist military aggression and put up 200 million dollars in economic aid for anti-Communist countries in the area.

Syria, like Egypt before it, accepted massive military and economic aid from Russia. Syrian-American relations hit rock bottom with the ouster of three Americans from Syria and the ejection of Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine from Washington.

Jordan's King Hussein was in danger twice during the year of losing his throne, if not his life. With strong American backing, he staged off a palace coup in April and fought against Egyptian-Syrian-Russian propaganda attacks in November.

By December, the administration was bouncing back from the shock of Russia's ICBM and Sputnik successes. Whether the bounce would take the United States far enough is one of the secrets buried in the New Year.

Amos 'n Andy Figures

The right of Rep. A. Clifford Jones, St. Louis, to challenge 1957 attendance figures of the Missouri State Fair is generally acknowledged. He did it during a House Appropriations Committee meeting in Jefferson City studying a request for $160,000 of state money to bolster fair funds.

Jones, like many others, could not understand the differential between fair released reports of an attendance of 543,708, and the auditor's report of 210,312 paid admissions. That might indicate the policy of "everybody pays to attend the Missouri State Fair," is subtle sophistry.

Some verbal heat was generated during the hearing as facts and figures were presented by Jones for comparison. Comments made by John Sam Williamson, agriculture commissioner, Rep. Milton Overstreet, Pettis county, and others.

During and after the hearing there was an atmosphere of bewilderment which newspaper and radio reporters seemed unable to penetrate.

The man they needed at the hearing was W. C. Ervin, secretary of the Fair, who is convalescing from a major operation at his home on the fairgrounds. In an interview with a Sedalia Democrat reporter, Ervin gave a candid explanation of the attendance figures which indicate the auditor's figures are correct money-wise and that the attendance figures released for publication were estimates, the latter following a precedent started many years ago for publicity purposes.

Crowds go where crowds are, hence the exaggeration.

A similar type of exaggeration about the number of subscribers they have, is used by some newspapers to attract advertisers. The Sedalia Democrat-Capital does not resort to this because its circulation is regularly audited by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Some of the worst exaggerators are the radio and TV stations which estimate their listener and viewer audiences out of all proportion to reality.

Like the practice of the Missouri State Fair about attendance this may be considered a stultification of ethics, but as Ervin says: "Throughout the entertainment world you will find reports of attendance figures have been exaggerated . . . to get attendance figures, some fairs count their attendance to the various shows, grandstand attractions and such, but they use them for publicity only. A big attendance figure oftentimes creates more interest."

Despite the common practice of exaggeration in the entertainment field, the public takes attendance figures with a grain of salt especially when they are served with frankness as in the present instance.

Hereafter when the Missouri State Fair issues reports on estimated attendance, newspaper editors may be impelled, in the interest of moral principles, to append a note: "Subject to confirmation by the annual audit."

More Pressure On Ike For Peace Talks

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Sen. Lyndon Johnson, one of the few who can get Ike on the telephone when they wish, has been urging the President to take a more constructive lead for peace.

The senator from Texas, who has watched the terrifying arms race from the inside and fully appreciates the civilization-wrecking impact of modern war, believes the United States should get out of the rut of Dulles diplomacy and make some new, more positive moves.

The administration's constant refrain of "let's have a preparatory conference" may be sound diplomacy, but Johnson recognizes the truth of what most of our diplomats advise—that this doesn't sit well with the rest of the world. They want action, not long drawn-out preparation.

Johnson, therefore, has urged Eisenhower to take the initiative with a spectacular speech before the United Nations, asking for agreement on the peaceful control of outer space. Simultaneously, the State Department has come up with a similar idea, wants Ike to go to New York to make a dramatic appeal that the arms race be stopped, and that the place to stop it is before we begin competing for outer space.

The President, tired and recently ill with a cold, has not enthused over the idea.

The Army's satellite, a great achievement for the United States, was a tragic defeat for the Republican national committee. They had gone to great expense to prepare television films featuring Republican congressmen boasting over the achievements on the Navy satellite Vanguard. Now the Army has launched its satellite Explorer while the Navy has been out of luck. Republicans fear their films are dead as a dodo. . . . The Air Force hopes to counteract the Army's big publicity break over launching the first American satellite by sending the first American rocket to the moon. Air Force scientists predict they can reach the moon as early as this spring—if they can get the green light to go ahead. . . . Secretary of Defense McElroy

Guest Editorial

COLUMBIA TRIBUNE: Post Office Air-Conditioning. Just while we were working hard to assimilate President Eisenhower's promises to cut other governmental expenditures to the bone in order to provide the extra money needed for defense without increasing taxes; just when we were almost converted by Mr. Eisenhower and his Postmaster General, Mr. Summerfield, that four or five-cent letter postage is inescapable; just when we were beginning to hope for better postal service through better equipment, we learned what that equipment is going to be for a number of Missouri post offices, including Columbia's.

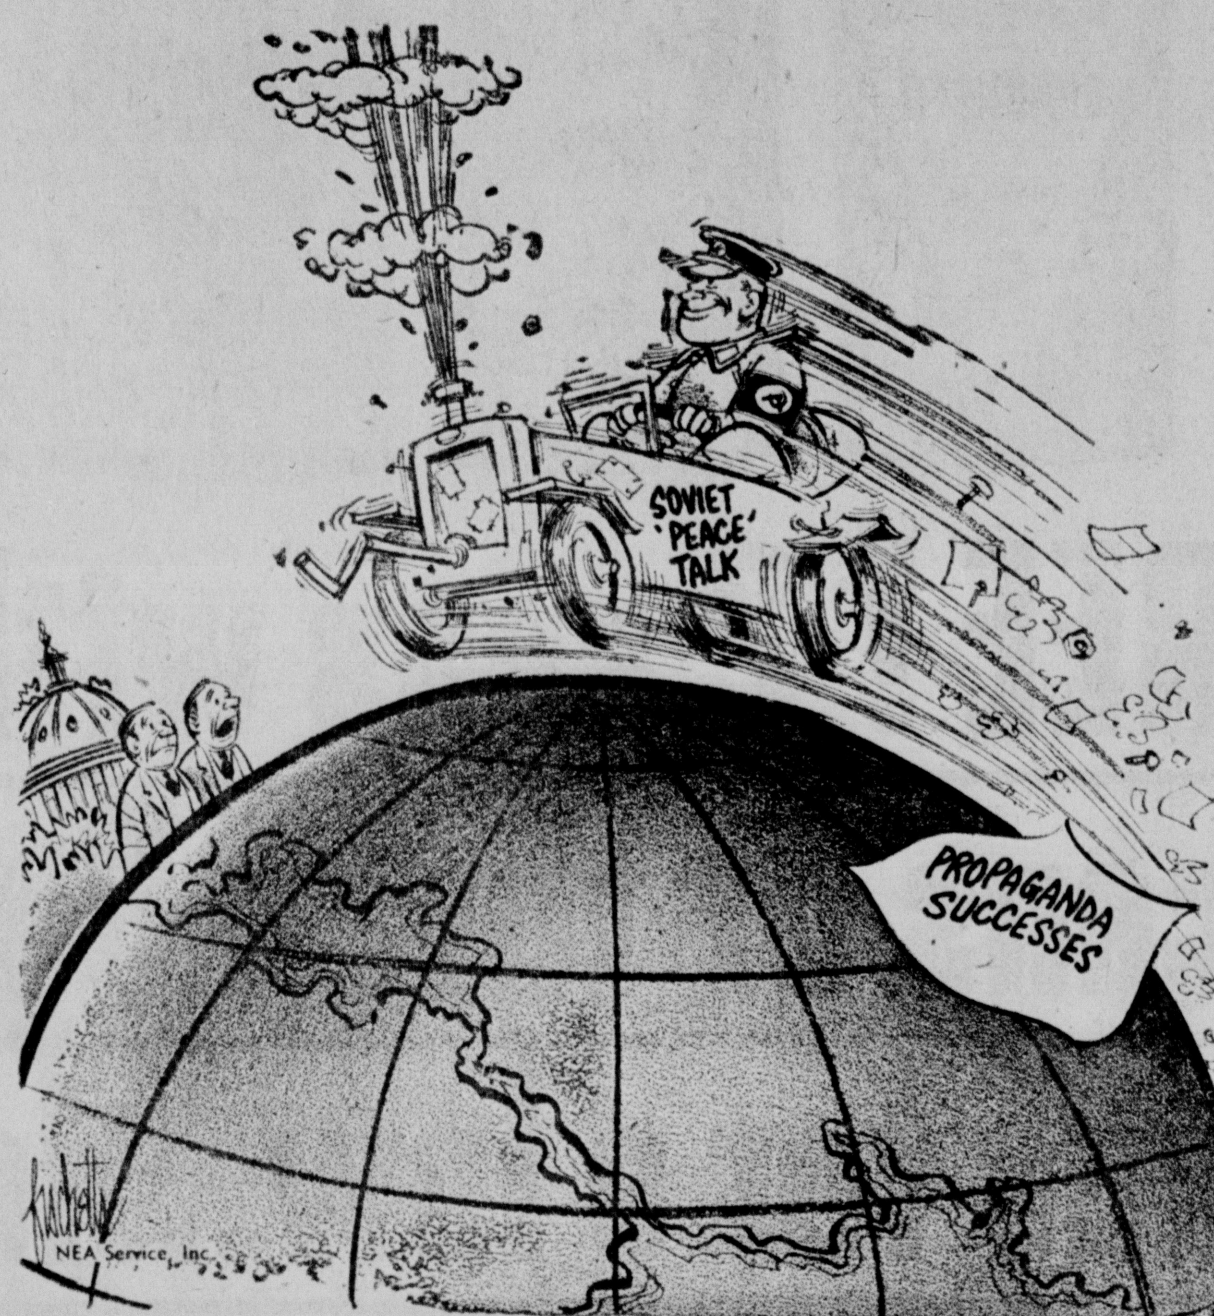

Air-conditioning!

Now, we think air-conditioning is fine. Maybe its use now is so general that it no longer is in the luxury class. But it is something that a good many people find it possible to do without, particularly people—taxpayers—whose individual finances are in as sad a state as those of our Government in general, which is raising its $275 billion debt limit, and the Post Office department in particular, which wants to raise letter postage 66 2-3 per cent.

We don't know how many million dollars the Post Office department is going to spend air-conditioning Post Offices around the country, but we doubt that the plan is going to do much to improve the postal services, sell more stamps, or win great acclamation from the taxpayers who might be able to have air-conditioning themselves if they weren't going to have to plank down so much income tax next April 15.

There still are a great many people in this country who believe that the only way to save money is not to spend it. That doesn't seem to be Mr. Summerfield's idea. He apparently prefers raising postal rates and/or taxes over cutting off a few trills until we get caught up with our bills.

Eisenhower, Hoover Spoke Similar Words

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Hoover — 28 years apart but with each facing a sliding economy and growing unemployment — were not only equally optimistic but talked in almost identical language.

On March 7, 1930, Hoover, knee-deep in a mushrooming depression which was to become catastrophic before it got better, issued a statement which said: "All the evidence indicates that the worst effect of the (stock market) crash on employment will have been passed during the next 60 days."

Yesterday Eisenhower confronted with a deepening recession and government statistics which showed at least 4 1/2 million unemployed, issued a statement which said: "Every indication is that March will commence to see the start of a pickup in job opportunities. That should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn in our economy."

Hoover had economic advisers when he made his statement. Eisenhower, too, has economic advisers. He said he based his hopes for the future on the "best advice

I can get, and on my own study of the facts."

Not all economists agreed with Hoover. Not all economists agree with Eisenhower now. Not all agreed Hoover was doing as much as was needed to get the country out of its depression. Not all agree Eisenhower is doing as much as they think the present recession requires.

It took a while to determine Hoover's optimism was wrong. It will take a while to determine whether Eisenhower's optimism is right.

But in his statement Eisenhower pointed to a number of steps the government already has taken to nudge the economy back up the ladder. And this country has more government weapons for fighting recession than in Hoover's day.

But Dr. Marcus Nadler, economist of the Hanover Bank and New York University, looked dubiously at Eisenhower's prediction that next month will be a possible turning point for business and unemployment. He said: "I question that very seriously. So far the government has been talking but not doing anything."

The latest remedial step by Eisenhower was a proposal to Congress for a two-billion-dollar program — spread over three to five years — for modernizing the postal service.

This would include some new post offices, repairs on old ones, new machinery, and so on. It would mean contracts for business and jobs for people.

Under this plan private investors would put up about 1 1/2 billion dollars and the government the rest. Spread over five years that would come out at about 400 million dollars a year.

It sounds big. But stacked up against total construction in this country in 1957 — around 48 billion dollars — it's a drop in the bucket. Nevertheless, Eisenhower, pointing to steps already taken, said: "If other measures are needed, I assure you they will be proposed — and in time."

Find Neurosis Victims Have More Symptoms Than Illness

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

A correspondent writes that his wife has been sick for 25 years and he encloses a list of 17 doctors who have seen her, none of whom has found any cause for her ailments.

It is almost incredible that the lady in question could have any serious organic disease for such a long time without the discovery of the cause, or without considerable worsening. Hence one would suspect that she is a victim of what is called a neurosis. This is defined as a functional disorder of the nervous system. It means that disease of the organs cannot be found, but it does not necessarily mean that the victim is "healthy."

However, physicians are in agreement that a long lasting neurosis of this sort is extremely difficult to treat. It is characteristic for neurotic patients to go from physician to physician without any real improvement in the symptoms that bother them.

A particular variety of neurosis is mentioned by another correspondent, who says that her doctor tells her she has an "anxiety neurosis." She would like to know what to do about it. This, too, is a complicated matter.

Anxiety neurosis is probably not a true disease since no one ever dies from it, although it is said to affect almost one person out of 20 to a greater or lesser degree.

It is also called soldier's heart, effort syndrome, neurasthenia, and several other things.

Those who suffer from this condition, no matter what it is called, frequently complain of pounding of the heart, easy tiredness, a breathlessness even without exertion, slight dizziness, faintness, headache, apprehension, weakness, difficulty in sleeping, excessive sweating and a whole lot of other vague types of distress.

Fortunately they do not usually have all these complaints!

Alarm Over Indonesia

Russian Naval Force May Help Communist Prestige

By JOSEPH A. DEAR

Of Our Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — High officials at the State Department and the Pentagon view the drifting deterioration of strategic Indonesia with growing alarm.

Indonesia, which is comprised of 80 million people on very rich islands lying between Australia and Southeast Asia, is torn by rebellion and intrigue. A group of dissident Army officers is threatening to establish a separate republic. The central government exercises almost no control over large areas of its territory. Indonesia is embroiled in a bitter argument with the Dutch about the status of Northern New Guinea, which each claims. And the Communist Party seems to be increasing in strength since it was brought into the government by President Sukarno last year.

It was this action of Sukarno's that sharpened the misgivings already felt by many American officials. Just about a year ago, Sukarno announced an end to western style democratic rule. He proposed instead party coalition rule, and indicated the Communists would have representation in the government. He described this new policy as "guided democracy."

Within a month violence erupted in several of the islands of the republic. Later in the year, Sukarno himself was shaken up when terrorists pitched grenades at him. Shortly after that the Indonesian president announced he would spend much of his time visiting neighboring countries.

John Allison, then the American ambassador to Jakarta, advised his State Department superiors that Sukarno still dominated the scene; Sukarno's departure after the bomb attack was not a resignation.

It turned out that Allison's reading of the situation was correct. Sukarno still is the dominant personality, but the ability of his government to control its territory now is doubted. Also, our officials doubt that Sukarno can control political trends in anything like the fashion he has said he could.

Sukarno has talked with many Americans, reporters and government officials, both while here on a visit and in Jakarta. He has always insisted he could beat the Indonesian Communist Party at will. Sukarno is a spellbinder and that is the basis of his easy assurance. The huge majority of his people, he has said, would react against the Communists because of their association with the unpopular Chinese minority.

Allison apparently bought this line. His recent recall, according to the best sources, shows our top officials are disenchanted.

The recall of Allison has not solved the problem. The economy of the islands is shaky. The Indonesians did nothing to help on that score by seizing all transportation facilities — and that means practically all facilities — still operated by Dutch concerns. The seizure was intended to emphasize Indonesia's exasperation with the Dutch for continuing to assert their right to half of New Guinea.

Another complicating development is the upcoming visit to Jakarta of a Russian naval force. Our officials fear this visit will give additional prestige to the local Communists.

Some of the rebellious Army elements in Indonesia are openly anti-Communist. But our people are not sure these factions enjoy enough popular support to govern.

One thing is clear: this area is so important (the Japanese decided on war when denied Indonesia oil) that it must be kept from the Communists.

Odds and Ends
By News Staff

After attending a meeting a woman came home, put her car in the garage and went to the back door, only to find it locked. She knocked and knocked — no response. Inside she could hear her little dog barking but still her husband didn't come to the door. She had a key for the front door but when she went around there, the steps were so icy she was afraid to try to go up them, so she went back to the kitchen door and knocked some more.

In the living room of the home the sleeping husband was very rudely awakened by the insistence of the dog. The dog tried every means it could think of to get the sound sleeper awake, finally did and took him to the back door where his wife was still pounding on the door. The dog appeared pretty proud of itself, too, as if it knew it was responsible for getting her in.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.

Children put most adults to shame with their freedom from complexity. They say what they think without covering up their thoughts with unnecessary words. They pray so openly and so sincerely when they have been taught about God and His power in the universe.

A child recently prayed "Thank God for erasers which make mistakes disappear." That thought is so honest and so real that everyone should read it and pause. Many adults ought to utter the same prayer.

Most of us do not want to admit that we make mistakes. If we make errors we want to hide them. We even hesitate to confess our sins to God. Yet, a child expects to make mistakes. The child simply wants to erase the errors and correct them.

God alone can erase the mistakes and sins from our lives. "Thank God for erasers to make our sins disappear." Please give us clean pages on which to write!

Answer To Divorce?

Since 1946 the divorce rate in this country has been cut almost in half, according to a sociologist at the University of Southern California. It's down from 4.3 per 1,000 population of 2.3.

The figures are striking, and they suggest a host of questions that probably cannot be answered sort of an exhaustive survey of the problem.

Are people choosing their mates more carefully, or are they perhaps learning to adjust their differences more amicably?

Could it be that there are outside factors, like the rising cost of maintaining separate households or the loss of community property tax advantages, which are exerting pressure on people to stay together despite their difficulties?

It would be ironic if a tax feature designed to ease a married couple's financial burden served in many instances to compound unhappiness in the home.

For years many critics of modern life have been moaning about the divorce rate. Now that it seems to be improving markedly, we really ought to find out why. Knowing might contribute a good deal to our happiness.

The pickle industry of the United States uses about 240,000 tons of cucumbers annually.

Thought For Today

Shrine of Liberty Comes of Age As Slums Are Cleared for Park

PHILADELPHIA'S INDEPENDENCE HALL looms in the background as workmen dig trenches in Independence Square to uncover landscape planning made in 1736 and the location of an observatory from which the Declaration of Independence was first read to the public.

By THOMAS I. GERSON
PHILADELPHIA — (NEA) — Independence Hall, America's foremost historic shrine, has come of age.

Long hemmed in by a clutter of slums and commercial buildings, the hall's "front yard" is now being cleared under a federal-state-city program. It is a development in which every American citizen can take pride.

Two hundred and twenty-one years ago architect Edmund Woolley was paid five pounds by John Penn, son of the great William Penn, for designs for a structure first called Province Hall, then the State House, then Independence Hall.

Woolley hadn't heard of a document that was to begin, "We the people of the United States."

He didn't know that he had designed a cradle of liberty where the Declaration of Independence would be signed on July 4, 1776. Nor did he know that millions of visitors would come each year to the shrine where the Constitution was adopted and the United States perpetuated on Sept. 17, 1787.

The current project of reclamation will place our national shrine and its group of buildings between two park-like malls, three blocks in each direction. One, being built by the state, extends between Fifth and Sixth streets and Chestnut and Race streets; the other, by the Federal government, from fifth street to Second street and from Chestnut to Walnut street.

Two blocks of the state-sponsored "Independence Mall" have been completed and landscaped, and a third block of rattrap building is now being razed to make way for the last section.

Work on the Federal area, covering three city blocks, is under way. It will include important historic sites, such as the property adjacent to old Christ Church, the site of Benjamin Franklin's home. Significant buildings included within these boundaries are the First Bank of the United States, erected in 1793, the oldest banking building in the country; the Second Bank of the United States, a

So she went along. That was two years ago. Yesterday they got a marriage license.

MAN IN MOTION — Industrialist Henry J. Kaiser, who'll celebrate his 76th birthday next April, is still going strong, despite the fact that only a couple of years ago a serious illness forced him to take it easier. More or less regularly he flies from his home in Honolulu to Oakland, Calif., checks up on his 57 enterprises at his headquarters there, flies on to New York to see his bankers, then on to check up on things in Washington—and is back in Hawaii within 72 hours from the time he left.

Financier, Statesman

Sorosis Has Review Of Books on Baruch

Mrs. Emmett Ellis, Warrensburg, in a very interesting manner, wove together the highlights of the life of Bernard Baruch, American financier and statesman, Monday afternoon at Sorosis as she reviewed two recent books on this unusual man. One book was written by Margaret Coit, noted biographer and the other by Baruch himself.

Baruch had asked Margaret Coit to write his biography and she was very glad for the opportunity. He let her have all of his memoirs, clippings, letters, everything and she spent five years writing it. The manuscript, when completed Mrs. Ellis said, weighed 16 pounds and had a half-million words. The biographer sent it to Baruch for reading and the checking of facts. When he returned it to her, he had taken out his memoirs and had changed so many things that she had to re-write it completely and that took another year. Just what the trouble was neither of them said. Mrs. Ellis told the group, but it must have been that he did not like Margaret Coit's interpretation of some things.

The story by Margaret Coit began with a boy of 14 in Charleston, S. C., looking down on the ruins of a town wrecked by the Civil War and forming a hatred for war. The boy was Woodrow Wilson. At that same time in Camden, S. C., a son had just been born to Belle Baruch, wife of Dr. Simon Baruch. He was named Bernard Manness Baruch.

Belle Baruch was a daughter of a wealthy family of the Old South and had never even dressed herself until she went to Camden as a bride, because her family owned slaves. But she was equal to being the wife of a poor doctor, for all in Camden were poor, and adjusted to her new way of life easily.

Dr. Baruch came to this country from Prussia at 15 to escape compulsory military training in Germany and went to the home of Manness Baums in Camden to live. He worked first in a general store but the Baums saw he was exceedingly brilliant and so sent him to medical school. He was graduated from the medical school and went immediately into military service in the Confederate Army.

Bernard, one of four sons in the Baruch family, had a happy childhood, and it didn't make any difference that he was Jewish until he was 11 years old and the family moved to New York City, because the father felt there were better advantages there for his sons. Here Bernard was given a rough time by other boys just because he was a Jew, and he learned that here there was no use to have a brain unless you had an educated fist as well.

He had a better background than any of the boys who taunted him. His mother's ancestors came to this country in 1690 and were of a fine southern lineage and he learned, when he went to Germany on a visit, the Baruch genealogy was inscribed on a human skull, which he found in the back of a closet, in Hebrew, German and other languages and he came from a line of Hebrew priests.

His father had said, though, it is more important to know where you're going than where you came from.

At 15, Bernard, six feet tall, wearing his father's cut-over suits,

Street and always operated alone because he didn't want anybody else to lose in case he was wrong.

He met and married Miss Annie Griffin, a member of an old and prominent family. They had a long courtship of several years. Her father opposed the marriage because he felt it wouldn't work out. They thought it would and it did. They had a full Episcopal service performed by her grandfather. They had three children, two girls, Belle and Rena, and one son, Bernard Jr.. The daughters followed their mother's religion, the son his father's, but the slights toward his girls when they were barred from organizations their mother had belonged to, hurt him. He tried to make up to his wife and daughters by giving them everything.

When Baruch made his first million, he went proudly to his father to tell him. Dr. Baruch said: "Well, son, what good are you going to do with it?" One thing he did was to fix his father financially so he would not have to bother about making a living but could go on with his research. He helped many people and even went to the assistance of the great Morgan with a million dollars when he needed it. He built hospitals, schools and has done many charitable things.

A Democrat by inheritance, Baruch became a Democrat by conviction when Woodrow Wilson made the fight against social snobbery. In World War I, he became the most powerful man in America outside the Presidents. He knew industry, spoke the language of the industrialists, and was called on to mobilize industry for war.

He did, appointed his own committee of capital and labor, and perhaps no other American sacrificed as much. He paid his own employees and, when the country had to have money, bought five million dollars worth of bonds.

He emerged as key man in the Wilson era. He refused to enter politics. He never got angry in public and never criticized a President. A President has too big a job to be criticized by anybody, he said. He has been a friend and advisor of all the Presidents of both parties. He clashed at first with Franklin Roosevelt. He could not see a halo over Roosevelt's head. But later they became close friends.

He was a great admirer of Truman. Helped financially to get him the Senate seat and later Vice Presidency, but when Baruch refused to be Democratic chairman, he got one of those Truman letters. Nevertheless, he continued to support Truman, and they later ironed things out.

He refused a request by Lenin to organize Russian industry except under certain conditions, and later Stalin wanted him to do for Russia in peace what he had done in war by organizing industry, but

Mrs. Joseph Maunders, art and drama department, announced that William M. Force, Missouri Valley College, Marshall, will be the speaker next week and there will be a luncheon in his honor, reservations to be in by noon Friday.
